SHIPPING NEWS

The S. S. Oregonian reached Honolulu from San Francisco on Tuesday afternoon just as the Claudine was leaving. She will reach Kahului with freight in a few days.

Clark & Henry of Stockton, California, who secured the contract to dredge out the channel at Pearl Harbor, are arranging for the shipment of material to the Islands in connection with the work.

The Pacific Mail steamer City of Para, just out of dry dock at Hunter's Point, will go to Port Los Angeles to take aboard a party of several hundred Porto Rican laborers for the Hawaiian plantations, says the Chronicle, September 1. The Colon, of the same line, has been engaged in carrying Porto Ricans to the Islands, but will go back to the Panama route.

The largest fleet of deep water vessels to clear from San Francisco since the strike began, was on August 31. The vessels were the Mariposa, for Honolulu; City of Para, for Port Los Angeles, to carry Porto Ricans to Hawaii; the steamer Oregonian, for New York, via Honolulu, with general merchandise from San Francisco, and sugar from the Hawaiian Islands.

The Alice Kimball is expected in Kahului harbor shortly. While in Honolulu she has been on the marine railway and also before the Federal Court. The case in court was compromised, Divilbiss despoising of his interest to Messrs. Scott and Taylor. Tuesday's Semi-Weekly Star gives the following account of the pilikia.

Deputy United States Marshal E. R. Hendry on yesterday seized the schooner Alice Kimball on proceedings brought by Tom Fitch in behalf of Charles Divilbiss, who claims that J. T. Taylor and W. G. Scott, the present supposed owners, defrauded him out of a half interest in the vessel, by a fraudulent sale at Kahului. After the Alice Kimball was wrecked at Kahului she was bought by Divilbiss and Scott, it is claimed for $125, and proceeded to try and save her. They spent $340 each, finally got her afloat. Divilbiss says that it was agreed that each owned half the vessel and that the total was $2,500. In July the half owner Scott proceeded to sell the whole vessel to Taylor, says the libellant, contriving to cheat and defraud Divilbiss out of his half of the vessel. Taylor is now preparing to live Honolulu with the vessel, with intent to defraud Divilbiss of his rights, as the latter, and he asks the court to order the vessel sold and the proceeds divided according to law.
